Welding

(WBNG) — Students at Sidney High School are learning more than just academics, they are getting a real-life experience with their school's welding program.

The program is in its first year of partnership with the Raymond Corporation.

One of the things the students have built and welded is a holiday display for the Roberson Museum, and they're proud of it.

"That was really fun," said Sydne Clupper, a senior. "Especially because we get to work with Raymond themselves and being able to talk to them about how to make – we made a present, it was really challenging and fun."

Students noted that welding is "timeless."
